Please consider supporting the Frances Perkins Center. Now more than ever, it is important for Frances Perkins' legacy as a lifelong advocate for social justice and economic security to become better known.

Since she left the Labor Department in 1945, public awareness of Frances Perkins has waxed and waned. A new surge of interest began several years ago and continues on. The need for our nation to recall the Perkins heritage and build upon it has never been more urgent than now.

The Center continues her exemplary work for social justice and economic security. The gifts of many kinds provided by you and other friends make this work possible. Together we are realizing in fresh ways the vision that Frances Perkins so ably promoted throughout her lifetime of sacrifice and service.

Gifts of all sizes are essential to our daily operations. The Center depends on friends both old and new offering their support.
